

Individual Retirement Accounts

Traditional and Roth IRAs

Traditional IRA

- What is a Traditional IRA?

A Traditional IRA is an Individual Retirement Arrangement, or more commonly known as an Individual Retirement Account, which allows pre-tax dollars along with any interest, capital gains, or dividend income to grow tax deferred until withdrawal. With an Entrust Self-Directed Traditional IRA, an individual may have the ability to direct their funds towards a wide variety of investments.

- Traditional IRA Eligibility Requirements

An individual can open and make contributions to an IRA if both of the following requirements are met:

- ◆ Taxable compensation has been received during the year
- ◆ 70 ½ years of age has not been reached by the end of the year

If an individual has compensation during the year and has not reached 70 ½ years of age, they may contribute for that year. For couples who are married and file a joint tax return, they both qualify to establish a separate IRA and contribute. Joint return filers may use their combined income for contribution purposes.

- Traditional IRA Contributions for 2019

If an individual has not reached 50 years of age by the end of the year, the maximum contribution that can be made is the lesser of $6,000 or the amount of their taxable compensation.

If an individual has reached 50 years of age or older by the end of the year, the maximum contribution that can be made is the lesser of $7,000 or the amount of their taxable compensation. Due to The Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, a $1,000 catch-up provision was provided in an effort to allow additional retirement savings. Any contributions made to the Roth IRA for the same year will reduce the maximum contribution.

Consider an Entrust Self-Directed Traditional IRA if:

- ◆ You want tax-deferred earnings
- ◆ You want your contribution to be deductible
- ◆ Your income exceeds the income limits for contributing to a Roth IRA*
- ◆ Your current Traditional IRA restricts your investment options
- ◆ You have funds in an old 401(k) that you want to invest in alternative assets

*See IRA Comparison for 2019

Roth IRA

- What is a Roth IRA?

A Roth IRA is an individual retirement account that is funded with post-tax dollars, but all earnings, including interest, capital gains, and dividend income, grow tax deferred. Income taxes are paid on the initial contribution in the year it is made, but earnings can be withdrawn tax deferred as long as certain requirements are met*. In addition, contributions can be withdrawn at any time.

- What are the eligibility requirements?

An individual can make contributions to a Roth IRA if they have taxable compensation for the year, and their modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) does not exceed the specified limits.

If an individual and their spouse have received compensation during the year, both can contribute to their own IRA. However, if filing a joint tax return, only one individual is required to have compensation.

- Contribute to a Roth for a Tax-Free Future

Contributions to a Roth IRA are not tax deductible, but the gains accumulate tax deferred and may eventually be distributed tax free. If the individual is under 50 years old, the maximum allowable contribution for 2019 is $6,000. If the individual is 50 or over, the maximum contribution is $7,000 to include a $1,000 catch-up provision for additional retirement savings. Any contributions made to a Traditional IRA in for the same year will reduce the maximum contribution.

If your current Roth IRA does not allow self-direction, you can easily transfer funds to an Entrust Self-Directed Roth IRA. You can also convert a Traditional IRA or a 401(k) with a former employer into a Roth. Although this is a taxable event, it allows you to fund your Roth IRA with more than just your annual contribution.

With a Roth IRA, there is no age limit for contributions, and individuals are not required to take distributions once they reach age 70 ½. In all cases, the principal amounts invested can be withdrawn without any tax liability.

Consider an Entrust Self-Directed Roth IRA if:

- ◆ You want tax-deferred earnings and no taxation on withdrawals
- ◆ You want to continue saving for your retirement beyond age 70 ½
- ◆ You do not want to be required to take distributions
- ◆ Your income does not exceed the income limits for contributing*

The amount an individual can contribute to a Roth IRA is based on their MAGI. However, as of 2010, there is no income limit if converting a Traditional IRA or Individual 401(k) with a former employer to a Roth.

See IRA Comparison for 2019

Start Saving Today

It's never been easier or more convenient to establish an account with Entrust:

1. Call your local Entrust office and request a new account application, or open an account online at: <https://www.theentrustgroup.com/open-an-account>
2. Submit your application to your local office, or see submission options below:

Email:

newaccounts@theentrustgroup.com

Fax:

510-587-0960

Mail:

The Entrust Group
555 12th Street, Suite 900
Oakland, CA 94607

3. Fund your IRA by making a contribution, or transfer/roll over an existing IRA or 401(k).
4. Choose your investment. For investment ideas, the Entrust Learning Center has a complete library of articles, case studies, news, and ideas on a number of different investment strategies.

If you would like to learn more about how you can benefit from self-direction, please take advantage of free, live and pre-recorded events offered through any one of our nationwide offices.

IRA Comparison for 2019

	Traditional	Roth
Eligibility ▶	Up to the year prior to attaining age 70 ½. Must have earned income.	No age limit. there is an income limit based on tax filing status.
Income Limits for Full Contribution ▶	None	Single: Up to $137,000 Joint: Up to $203,000
Income Limits for Partial Deductibility (Traditional)/ Contribution (Roth) ▶	Single: $64,000 - $74,000 Joint: $103,000 - $123,000	Single: $122,000 - $137,000 Joint: $193,000 - $203,000
Contribution Limits ▶	$6,000 or 100% of compensation, whichever is less. The contribution limit is reduced by any contributions made to a Roth IRA.	$6,000 or 100% of compensation, whichever is less. The contribution limit is reduced by any contributions made to a Traditional IRA.
Catch-Up Contribution Limit ▶	Additional $1,000 if at least age 50. The contribution limit is reduced by any contributions made to a Roth IRA.	Additional $1,000 if at least age 50. The contribution limit is reduced by any contributions made to a Traditional IRA.
Withdrawal Taxation ▶	Pre-tax contributions and earnings are taxable at time of distribution	Withdrawals of contributions are always tax-free. Earnings are tax-free after the 5 year requirement and the account holder meets 1 of the following: age 59 ½, death, disability, qualified first-time home purchase. First-time home purchase has a lifetime cap of $10,000.
Required Minimum Distributions (RMDs) ▶	Begin at age 70 ½	None